RBC employees receive a great honour

December 5, 2012

Meet some RBC employees awarded the 2012 Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal for volunteerism and community work.

Within the charitable giving and volunteer community, RBC employees are known to be a very giving and generous group. It is only fitting that on this day, International Volunteer Day, we honour RBC employees who have been given special recognition by her Majesty the Queen with the 2012 Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal for their volunteer work. The Diamond Jubilee medal honours both Her Majesty's service to Canada and Canadians who have made significant contributions and achievements in their communities.

This award aligns with RBC's belief in building prosperity through caring for the communities in which we live and work. There are many RBC recipients of the 2012 Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal, all of which are highly respected community members with significant contributions in the areas of diversity, community building, and corporate social responsibility.

"On behalf of RBC, I would like to congratulate and recognize these award recipients, and thank all of our employees who are making a difference through charitable volunteer work. Our award winners have demonstrated remarkable commitment to their communities, and make us all proud! Please join us in congratulating our colleagues on this distinction." Shari Austin, V.P. Corporate Citizenship and Executive Director, RBC Foundation.

Meet some of this year's winners:

Bruce MacKenzie, Regional President, Alberta & Territories

Bruce's service to the province of Alberta has been previously recognized with Alberta's Centennial Medal in 2005. He was recently the Co-Chairman of the $250 million fundraising campaign for Mount Royal University, Member of the Advisory Board for the Global Business Forum, member of the REACH! Volunteer Cabinet Board, which raised over $300 million to support health care initiatives. Bruce also co-chaired the Canadian Mental Health Association (CMHA) – Calgary Region and the Horizon Housing Society Fish and Chips Golf Tournament and Fly Fishing Derby, which has raised over one million dollars in the last eight years.

"For me, the best part of volunteering is having the opportunity to see tangible results in a short time. The Horizon Housing fundraising campaign is a good example. It was so gratifying to see an individual who lived most of his life with a mental health disorder and through the program received the counselling and the accommodation he needed to turn his life around. It makes one feel pretty good inside"

Samantha has been recognized for her volunteer efforts which include her board work for St. John Ambulance, chairing fundraising for Canada Company's bike ride raising $60,000 to support the education of children of fallen soldiers, and playing saxophone in a Legion band to entertain seniors. She is also Vice Chair of Military Minds, an organization that provides counseling and other support services for veterans and their families affected by Post Traumatic Stress Disorder.

"The best part of volunteering is seeing first hand the extraordinary potential that each and every one of us has to support change for the better. Through leading organizations like St. John Ambulance and Military Minds I often have the opportunity to read letters of gratitude from people and their families who in times of desperation were saved by strangers. To this I say, can there be any greater gift or motivation for giving."

Debbie Young-Hermans completing one of many Joints in Motion Team Arthritis fundraising treks from Macchu Picchu to Kilimanjaro to Everest Base Camp

Debbie Young-Hermans, Senior Business Analyst, Capital Markets Technology

Debbie is an ongoing champion of RBC Capital Markets' annual United Way fundraising campaign for more than 16 years and has recruited hundreds of volunteers for United Way initiatives. Her involvement with Heart & Stroke Foundation, Canadian Blood Services, Ronald McDonald House, Joints in Motion Team Arthritis and Toronto International Film Festival, displays her dedication to community building.

"For me, the best part of volunteering time or fundraising for great charitable causes was when I recently completed the toughest climbing trek of my life with the Joints in Motion Team Arthritis to Mt. Everest Base Camp in Nepal. My own personal marathon after training peaks from Macchu Picchu to Kilimanjaro. Each step up Everest brought me that much closer to not only my climbing goal but also my fundraising goal as well. This time I trekked in "someone else's shoes" because my "hero" was unable to make the trek themselves. The most wonderful feeling to cap off a fundraising drive raising $70,000 to find a cure for juvenile arthritis. Volunteerism is being able to make time to do something for others no matter how big or small the challenge, knowing that through our own efforts we are able to make a difference in others who are less fortunate."

Jennison Asuncion, IT Accessibility Consultant

Jennison, an IT Accessibility Consultant with RBC who himself is blind, has been recognized by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) for his ongoing community work with SCORE, CNIB's signature leadership program for youth with vision loss. Outside of his work at RBC, Jennison volunteers his time raising accessibility awareness within the tech community, locally and globally. Among his activities this year, Jennison co-founded an annual event called Global Accessibility Awareness Day, and co-founded the Toronto Accessibility and Inclusive Design Meetup Group.

"For me, the best part of volunteering is when someone who has attended an event that I have been involved in tells me they realize now that implementing accessibility isn't difficult to do."

Peggy Chan, Coordinator, Diversity Initiatives

working relationships with employees, clients and within the community. As Chair of The Sian Bradwell Fund for Children with Cancer Toronto, she raises funds to purchase priority Oncology equipment for SickKids Hospital. Peggy is also a member of the United Way Special Event Committee and an advocate for the women and children at Nellie's Shelter.

"For me, the best part of volunteering is empowering others to team up towards the common goal of making this city a better place for all. This was evident when I had the privilege to meet several childhood cancer survivors who had profound strength, bravery and determination to fight the deadliest diseases. Our fundraising efforts to help purchase life saving equipment have been a direct contribution to these success stories and this motivates me to continue making a tangible impact in our community. The opportunity to meet people from all walks of life and be inspired by their stories has been incredibly rewarding and reminds me of how fortunate I really am."

Alan Rae, Chairman's Council Investment Advisor, Richmond, British Columbia

Alan is respected by his clients and peers for the high standards by which he conducts business and contributes to organizations through supporting community living and children's health including Richmond Community Foundation, BC Centre for Ability and Down Syndrome Research Foundation.

"For me, the best part of volunteering is seeing firsthand the benefits of all of our efforts. In 2010, I was one of the RBC employees who was given the privilege of participating in the Olympic torch relay. As honoured as I was, I thought that the torch relay would be a wonderful life experience for one particular individual, Taya. With RBC's permission, I transferred my torch relay participation to her. Taya has suffered from epilepsy her whole life and the BC Centre for Ability has been there with her every step of the way. The torch relay was an extremely positive experience for her. Despite a seizure at the very end of her relay segment - at which point she handed the torch over to Steve Nash - Taya counts the torch relay as a once-in-a-lifetime experience. At the end of the day, I try to think outside of the box - using my many contacts in the community, my many years of community service and fundraising and the strength and support of RBC to help those organizations with whom I've become associated. None of this would be possible without the support of my Team and my Family."

There are many RBC employees receiving this award and we congratulate all the recipients. If you, or someone you know, has received an award, tell us your story!
