Sîan

Sîan (pronounced "SHAHN", hers is a Welsh Gaelic name which means 'precious gift of God') was born at St. Mary's Hospital in Montreal on October 3rd, 1984. Her mother found a lump on her foot on March 6th, 1985, and after undergoing a series of diagnostic tests, was diagnosed as having a rare form of cancer called 'primitive neuroectodermal tumour' (PNT) in her spine, liver and foot. Doctors thought the tumour had started in her pancreas and spread through her bloodstream.

Sîan was treated with chemotherapy at the Montreal Children's Hospital and radiation at the Montreal General Hospital, since the Montreal Children's did not have the facilities at the time.

She responded well for a short time, but when it was evident that the drugs were not working any longer, she underwent radical abdominal surgery in early October of 1985, followed by an intensive course of radiation treatment.

On Christmas Day, 1985, doctors found that the tumours had re-appeared in her legs, jaw and elsewhere. Sîan underwent radiation treatment again, and since the regular chemotherapy 'protocol' did not work, she was treated with experimental drugs.

They did not work, either, and on March 15th, Sîan lost her battle. She was 17 months old.

Félicitations à votre remarquable comité organisateur, à vos bénévoles et à vos participants enthousiastes pour le succès de la 36e édition du Tournoi de softball Sîan Bradwell! Du 6 au 9 août, l'Ouest-de-l'Île vibrait au rythme du Tournoi, porté par un formidable élan de solidarité.

Organisé à la mémoire de Sîan, cet événement est devenu, au fil des ans, un héritage qui continue de faire une réelle différence pour les enfants atteints de cancer. Grâce à votre générosité, Le Children pourra compter sur des pompes à perfusion intelligentes qui assurent un dosage exact à chaque fois. C'est une aide infiniment précieuse pour les patient(e)s, les parents et l'équipe soignante.

Le Fonds Sîan Bradwell pour enfants atteints de cancer célèbre son 40e anniversaire cette année. Votre engagement fidèle est profondément inspirant. Vous améliorez la vie des enfants qui luttent contre le cancer, et vous transformez leur quotidien. Du fond du cœur, merci.

Très cordialement,

Renée Vézina

July 30th, 2026

Congratulations to your remarkable organizing committee, your volunteers, and your enthusiastic participants on the success of the 36th edition of the Sian Bradwell Softball Tournament! From August 6 through 9, the West Island was alive with the spirit of the Tournament, powered by a wonderful wave of solidarity.

Organized in memory of Sîan, this event has become, over time, a legacy that continues to make a real difference for children with cancer. Thanks to your generosity, The Children's can count on smart perfusion pumps that ensure the perfect dose every time. It's an invaluable resource for patients, parents, and the healthcare team.

The Sîan Bradwell Fund for children with cancer will celebrate its 40th birthday this year. Your loyal commitment is deeply inspiring. You improve the lives of children battling cancer, and you transform their daily lives. From the bottom of my heart, thank you.

Sincerely,

Renée Vézina

When Sian was undergoing chemotherapy and radiotherapy, she needed blood transfusions to help her recover from the resulting anaemia. She had no energy even to play, and no appetite. She needed blood transfusions to help her recover, and her parents were extremely thankful that strangers had been kind enough to have given blood.

Why donations matters for people with cancer

Source: <https://www.blood.co.uk/why-give-blood/how-blood-is-used/cancer/>

Cancer and cancer treatment can affect the body's ability to produce healthy blood cells. Chemotherapy, radiotherapy and some cancers of the blood or bone marrow can lower blood counts or damage the immune system.

Donations can:

- replace red blood cells so oxygen can be carried around the body
- reduce the risk of serious bleeding by restoring platelet levels
- support the immune system using plasma
- provide stem cells to rebuild healthy bone marrow

How your body replaces blood

The average adult has around 10 pints of blood (roughly 8% of your body weight). Making a blood donation uses about 1 pint, after which your body has an amazing capacity to replace all the cells and fluids that have been lost.

Red blood cells

Take red cells. Millions of them are being made and dying every second. When you give blood you lose red cells and the body needs to make more to replace them. Special cells in the kidneys, called peritubular cells, sense that the level of oxygen in the blood has decreased (due to the loss of red cells) and start secreting a protein called erythropoietin. This passes through the bloodstream until it reaches the bone marrow (the soft fatty tissue inside the bone cavities).

The bone marrow produces stem cells, the building blocks that the body uses to make the different blood cells – red cells, white cells and platelets. The erythropoietin sends a message to the stem cells telling more of them to develop into red blood cells, rather than white cells or platelets.

How fast does your body make blood?

Your body makes about 2 million new red cells every second, so it only takes a number of weeks to build up stores of them again.

What about your white cells and platelets? A number of other messenger proteins also stimulate the production of these cells in the bone marrow, and over the next few days levels return to normal.

How long between blood donations?

Donors need to wait approximately 3 months between donations. So why wait? Unlike white cells and platelets, it takes several weeks for all the red cells to be replaced.

There's an important link between your red cells and your health because it's these cells, or rather the red-coloured haemoglobin they contain, that take oxygen around your body. Haemoglobin contains iron, and some is lost with each blood donation. To compensate, iron is mobilised from the body's iron stores, and the body also increases the amount of iron it absorbs from food and drink. Men normally have more iron stores than women.

Your haemoglobin levels

Before every blood donation your haemoglobin levels are tested. This is because any iron deficiency can result in reduced haemoglobin levels, and eventually, if not treated, in iron deficiency anaemia. This deficiency can make you feel tired.

Your iron levels

The body stores iron in the form of 2 proteins – ferritin (in men it accounts for about 70% of stored iron, in women 80%) and haemosiderin. The proteins are found in the liver, bone marrow, spleen and muscles. If too much iron is taken out of storage and not replaced through dietary sources, iron stores may become depleted and haemoglobin levels fall.

After a donation, most peoples' haemoglobin levels are back to normal after 6 to 12 weeks. This is why donors are asked to wait for a minimum time between donations, depending on gender, to ensure that your haemoglobin levels are not lowered over the long term.

Drink up

Blood volume makes up approximately 8% of your body weight. About 55% of blood is comprised of plasma, of which 90% is water. So, although you donate less than a pint of blood at a time, almost half of this is water. That's why it is important for you to drink plenty of water before you donate and immediately after you've donated. It's important to replace fluids after you've donated, to help bring your blood volume levels back to normal. The kidneys also play their part in controlling blood volume by regulating the amount of sodium and water lost in urine.
